

An Exhortation to All Members of the Loyal Orange Institution to Live Up to the Principles and Precepts of the Glorious Reformation, and to be Faithful to Their Covenants and Obligations

My dear brethren of the Loyal Orange Institution,

I come before you today with a heavy heart, but also with a heart filled with hope. I am heavy-hearted because I see our beloved institution under attack from all sides. Our enemies are relentless in their efforts to destroy us, and they are using every means at their disposal to do so. They are spreading lies and misinformation about us, they are trying to intimidate us, and they are even trying to silence us.

But I am also filled with hope, because I know that we are a strong and resilient people. We have weathered many storms in our past, and we will weather this one as well. We have a rich history and tradition, and we are proud of our heritage. We are the descendants of those who fought and died for the Protestant faith, and we are determined to carry on their legacy.

Today, I am calling on all members of the Loyal Orange Institution to live up to the principles and precepts of the Glorious Reformation, and to be faithful to our covenants and obligations. We must stand firm in our faith, and we must defend the Protestant religion against all enemies.

The Reformation was a time of great upheaval and change. It was a time when the people of Europe rose up against the tyranny of the Roman Catholic Church. They demanded the right to read the Bible for themselves, and they demanded the right to worship God according to their own consciences.

The Reformers were not afraid to stand up for what they believed in. They were willing to risk their lives and their fortunes for the sake of the Gospel. And their sacrifice was not in vain. The Reformation led to a revival of the Christian faith, and it helped to spread the Gospel throughout the world.

The Loyal Orange Institution was founded in 1795 to defend the Protestant faith and to uphold the principles of the Glorious Reformation. For over two centuries, we have been faithful to our mission. We have stood up for the rights of Protestants, and we have defended the Protestant religion against all enemies.

Today, our enemies are once again trying to destroy the Protestant faith. They are trying to silence our voices, and they are trying to take away our freedoms. But we will not let them succeed. We will stand firm in our faith, and we will defend the Protestant religion against all enemies.

I urge you, my brethren, to live up to the principles and precepts of the Glorious Reformation. Be faithful to your covenants and obligations. Stand firm in your faith, and defend the Protestant religion against all enemies.

Together, we will overcome our enemies and we will ensure that the Protestant faith continues to flourish for generations to come.

God bless you, and God bless the Loyal Orange Institution.

Sincerely,

The Grand Master of the Loyal Orange Institution
