At the heart of the novel lies Father Robert Park, an Episcopal priest grappling with a profound crisis of faith. Haunted by the tragic loss of his wife and child, and tormented by doubts that have crept into his once unwavering beliefs, Father Park finds himself on a perilous journey of self-discovery.

As Father Park's faith falters, he encounters a diverse cast of characters who challenge his preconceived notions and push him to confront his inner demons. There's Anna, a young woman who has lost her faith but yearns to find meaning in a world that seems indifferent to her suffering; Warren, a gay man who struggles with the Church's condemnation of his sexuality; and Lucy, a doctor grappling with the ethical dilemmas of her profession.

Through these encounters, Jackson weaves a rich tapestry of human experiences that explores the myriad ways in which faith can both sustain and torment us. He delves into the depths of doubt and belief, the complexities of relationships, the search for meaning in a seemingly meaningless world.
