Spanning thousands of miles, from the Baltic Sea to the Black Sea, the front saw some of the heaviest fighting and greatest losses of the war. The Central Powers—Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, and the Ottoman Empire—fought against the Russian Empire for control of Eastern Europe.

This book presents a unique collection of photographs that document the Central Powers' campaigns on the Russian Front. These images offer a glimpse into the daily lives of soldiers, the horrors of war, and the impact of the conflict on the landscape.
